

“My son and daughter struggle with literacy, what can I do?”
Come to SPELD and learn about strategies to help them at home.

This will be an evening of informal presentations and discussions. Strategies will be presented to help parents support and help their children at home more successfully.

Mary Delahunty, Marg Mulqueen and Pat Minton

For: All parents/carers with children who struggle with literacy at school and want advice on what to do to help using both technology and off-computer activities

Many ideas for generally supporting children will be discussed as well as strategies for explicit support for poor readers, writers and spellers.

In addition, some excellent software, which can make a huge difference to children’s reading, writing and spelling, will be demonstrated e.g. Wordshark, Catch Up, Textease, Clicker 5 etc. Technology should be used well and work integrated into off-computer activities.

Finally, a brief look at strategies to help struggling children cope at school.

Our aim is to provide ideas to help parents and carers support their children’s learning more easily.

It is suggested that parents follow this session up with attendance at other sessions during the year so they will be in an excellent position to help their son/daughter.
